ertant Decision in Benkruptey.
Biatchford rendered this morning the fol-lecision in relation to meetings of creditors lowing decision in relation to meetings of creditors in bankruptcy proceedings:—

I regard the provisions of section 27 of the Benkruptcy act as imperative, that when the assignee, at the expiration of three months from the adjudication of bankruptcy on a case, requests the Court so to do, a second general meeting of the creditors must be called. General Order No. 19, as it now reads, does not conflict with nor abrogate the provisions of section 27. It requires the assignee, at the expiration of bankruptcy, to file a report with the Register, and also a statement as to the matters set forth in such rule. Then, if the Register shall judge it expedient, he may order that the second general meeting of creditors be called, although the assignee does not be request.

Jacob Gorbel vs. Regina Gorbel.—In this suit,

th has been brought for divorce, on the ground of alleged adultery, a motion was made on behalf of the defendant for allmony and counsel fee. She denies the charge preferred against her and says the plaintiff is using her property. Several amda-vits were submitted on the part of the plaintiff in tantiation of the charge of adultery. The amlavits of two policemen also set forth that she was habitual drunkard and a bad character. As to he plaintid's means, it was stated in his affidavit that he was a blacksmith and relied on his weekly earnings for the support of himself and child. He had bought two lots in New Jersey, but still owed the money, however, to pay for them, and owned no other property. The Court took the papers. Decisions.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

Trial of Jacob Anderson for the Murder of William Albert, Colored.

Before Justice Pratt and Associate Justices. The trial of the negro, Jacob Anderson, for the murder of William Albert, colored, in the county town of Flatbush, on the morning of June 16, was commenced yesterday in the Kings County Court of Oyer and Terminer. The body of Albert, who was an elderly man and the father of six children, was discovered on the read alde near his dwelling house, and as the head of deside near his dwelling house, and as the head of de-ceased was bruised and the skull fractured suspi-cion of foul play was awakened. The authorities were not long in unravelling the mystery. Deceased, it was learned, had been seen in company with Jacob Anderson at a late hour on Saturday night. A quarrel had taken place between them, when Jacob was knocked down. Anderson was arrested. The Coronor's inquest resulted in finding a verdict im-plicating the prisoner. On Saturday last the Grand-Jury found an indictment agalust him of murder in is represented by the Present purplied the case for the panelled District Attorney Britton opened the case for the prosecution, briefly stating the facts above set forth, and concluded by reading to the jury the definitions of the various degrees of murder, among which homicide might be classed.

Dr. A. W. Shepard, who made the post-mortem examination of the deceased, was the first witness examined, and gave it as his opinion that death was caused by concussion, followed by compression of the brain; there were two wounds—one on the back of the head and another over the brows; the wound on the back of the head was sufficient to cause death; the wound was such as would be produced by some blunt instrument or a stone; it could not have been occasioned by a natural fail.

John W. Robinson, colored, testified to his having seen Anderson quarrel with Albert about midnight of Saturday, June 16, and saw him throw stones at deceased, one of which knocked him down; subsequently Albert got upon his feet and staggered off in the direction of his house; this was all witness knew about the matter.

Other witnesses were examined, but they saw nothing of the fight between the prisoner and deceased. The case was given to the jury shortly before five o'clock, and they retired to deliberate, and about an hour after they returned a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree. Anderson was sentenced for six years to the State prison.

COURT OF SESSIONS.

Judge Moore Clearing the County Jail.
When the Court of Sessions adjourned on Wednesday every indicted person in the County Jail, except those held for murder, had been tried. This is a great saving to the county, and is an act of charity towards the prisoners themsolves. The Broadway Concert Saloons Again-Stabbed in the Face-A Swindler From Judge Hogan was again on the bench at the above-mentioned court yesterday, at the request of Judge Dowling, whose "week" it is. After dis charging the watch in the morning the first business of importance brought up was the case of three Broadway concert saloon was the case of three Broadway concert saloon keepers who were arrested the night previous by Captain Clinchy, of the Fourteenth precinct, and a squad of men. The names of the parties are Richard S. Campbell, of 556 Broadway; Edward Barlow, of 636 Broadway, and Daniel Perkins, of 598 Broadway. The complaint made against these parties was for violation of the Excise law, in that they did publicly keep, sell, give away and dispose of strong and spiritness liquous dispose of strong and spirituous liquors, wines, ale and beer in quantities less than five gallons at a time, to wit:—Ale and brandy, in violation of an act passed April 11, 1870, entitled 'An act regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors."

The prisoners were each held to ball in the sum of $100 to take their trial in the Special Sessions of $100 to take their trial in the Special Sessions Court.

STABERD IN THE PACE.

The next case was that of Rose Reily against Catharine Sweeny for stabbing. It appears that Catharine went to the house of the former, No. 446 Pearl street, where, after a very little exertion, she succeeded in getting up a fight with Rose, during the progress of which she drew from her pocket a good-sized penknile, with which she dealt Miss Rose several severe blows on the face, Catharine was sent to the cell below in default of $500 bail.

OUR FILTHY STREETS.

Charles Bentzon, of Greenwich street; Hannah Floute, of Baxier street; William Beadsly, of Greenwich street, and John Quigley, of Park street, were charged with having thrown ashes and garbage in the streets in violation of the sanitary code. Justice Hogan asked the officers who made the arrests if they had first requested the parties to remove the obnoxious rubbish, and on being informed that they had not, and that they had not received any orders to that effect, stated that he would send a communication to the Superintendent requesting him to issue the needful order. The prisoners were committed for trial.

SWINDLING.

Adolph Rosenthal was committed in default of extent of $59 50. Rosenthal went to the house of the above firm and represented himself as being in the employ of S. Schulien, of Vicksburg, Miss, with whom the firm was in the habit of doing business. Mr. Schulien had, he said, sent him on to New York for the purpose of buying goods, and, among other things, he wanted a lot of linen pants, coats and vests. Believing his story to be true, the clerk with whom he was talking had the goods boxed up and marked, and was about sending them off by express when Rosenthal requested him to have them sent to a house in East Broadway, where he was stopping, so that he could then ship them with a lot of other goods, and thus save expressage. This was agreed to, but after Rosenthal had left the wily clerk thought all was not right, and accordingly telegraphed to Mr. Schulien, who replied that the individual had been but was not any longer in his employ. An officer soon effected the swindler's arrest and Judge Hogan disposed of him as above stated.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

A Lively Discussion as to Lighting Up Central Park—The Board of Assistant Aldermen Repulsed. The adjourned meeting of the Board of Aldermen was held yesterday, Alderman Plunkitt in the chair.

LIGHTING UP CENTRAL PARK.

Alderman CONOVER moved that the Commis-sioners of Parks be requested to light up Central Park and all the other parks under their control in the evening. He said that he had been requested to do that by persons who are interested in it, and he believed that it would have the effect of diminishing crime.

Alderman Van Schalck suggested that the resolution should be referred to the Committee on Lands and Places. He did not believe there was a park in the world of that extent lighted. He himself rode through the Park most nights, and did not think there was anything to be afraid of.

Alderman Martin supported the resolution of Alderman Conover. He had been there at night many times. (Cries of "What hour?") Well, he had been there with his wife, and he knew that a light was necessary, and a very brilliant light too.

Aiderman Gilsey supported the resolution of Alderman Conover. He had resided in the vicinity of the Park, and had gone through the Park at night and had seen there what would make any respectable citizen blush.

Aiderman Vance said he would like to inquire how the gentleman could see such things in the dark. (Laughter.) The Park Commission had been conducted with very great wisdom. That was universally conceded; and that that Commission had in their wisdom deemed it best not to light that Park up. One of the reasons, no doubt, was manifestly that the Commission did not wish to offer any encouragement to a class that was met with on the more public highways of the city.

Aiderman Van Schanck desired to know what gas company would get the contract for the lighting. About two years ago a mutual gas company was got up for this purpose. (The Chairman ruled the Aiderman out of order.)

The resolution of Aiderman Conover was carried.

COURT HOUSE MESSENGERS.

A resolution from the Board of Assistant Aldermen, which recommended that the salary of Court House messengers—the names of whom were not given—be fixed at $1,200 per year, was submitted.

Aiderman Conover said that this was the result of Albany engineering on the part of the Assistant Aldermen, and that it was in deflance of a resolution of the same Board to confer with the committee of the Board of Aidermen.

Aiderman Van Schaick said that he knew a man who was a Court House messenger who attended about two hours a day and ran another business too. He thought $1,200 was good pay for that kind of work. He meant to know by whom the men were appointed.

Aiderman Marris said that, as one of the Committee on Salaries and Offices, he was certain that there was "a nigger in the feuce," and that the best of the Board of Aidermen. He should vote for the reference.

MILITARY NOTES.

The Seventh regiment will leave this city next Wednesday, the 3d proximo, for Saratoga, where they are to encamp for a week. The preparations that are being made in the regiment for the event are on the grandest scale, and it is believed that a larger number of the rank and file will turn out on the occasion than ever packed up duds for any one of the numerous out-of-town trips the command has heretofore indulged in. It is reasonable to suppose, judging from the popularity of the regiment, that its arrival at Saratoga will be the signal for a grand exodus of the fashionables from this city, who will vie with one another to make the season grand exodus of the fashionables from this city, who will vie with one another to make the season at Saratoga as gay as lavish expenditure and display can make it, at least during the stay of the gray coats. The location of the encampment is to be at Glen Mitchell, about a mile and a half north of the hotels. A more eligible spot could not have been selected if the "surveyors" of the regiment had hunted about for miles around the regiment had hunted about for miles around the regime of the bubbling springs. It is open to the drives from the hotels, and its immediate ground elevations will chable the sightseers to witness the daily evolutions of the regiment to their hearts' content and enjoy an uninterrupted view of the camp. The camp is to be called Camp Sherman, in honor of the hero of the "March to the Sea." Colonel Clark is determined that the regiment shall enjoy itself pleasantly during their stay at the Springs; but he is equally determined that the strict military features of an encampment shall be preserved in every particular, and that the discipline shall be rigorous and enforced regardless of consequences. In other words, as he has expressed it in an order to the regiment, he will do all that they will have naught but agreeable recollections of it for all time to come thereafter. It may be said just here that the rules and regulations for the guidance and government of the regiment while in camp are compiled mainly from the United States army regulations. People who are at all familiar with the gist and scope of these regulations will, therefore, readily understand that the camp duties will not consist exclusively of joilification, fun and follies, The evening parade will take place every evening at six o'clock. The following "daily routine" of the regiment in camp will give the unsophisticated a pretty good idea of what the gray coats will have to go through daily:—

1. Morning gun at sunrise, reveille sounded, when men will rise for roil-cail. 2. Call to meals made by the drums of the guard, offic sentees from drill and parade will be reported. 7. Salutes will be fired by the howitzer acction. 8. The camp to be thoroughly policed to insure cleanliness and neutness. 9. The Duke of Edinburg's Visit-Partially Successful Attempt to Blow Up the Statue of Prince Albert-Final Refusal to Pardon Penian Prisoners-Humboldt and the Late Prince Consort.

DUBLIN, June 14, 1872.

The last visit of the Prince of Wales to Ireland ended in a bloody riot. The visit of the Duke of Edinburg to open the Industrial Exposition in Dublin has terminated in a partially successful attempt to blow up the statue to Prince Albert in Leiceste Lawn. The Duke, after a week's sojourn in the Irish capital, left on the 10th inst. for England. The papers of both countries admit that his reception from the people was not cordial, and that he confined his intercourse to official and aristocratic per-sonages. Indeed, the correspondent of one of the London journals states hisses were distinctly heard as he ascended the steps or the ladder leading to the steamer, "not perhaps by the Duke, but by those of us immediately following."

REFUSAL TO PARDON FENIAN PRISONERS.

There are two causes for the attempt to destroy the statue of the late Prince Consort—one, the final refusal of the government to pardon the remaining Penian prisoners; the other, the decided dislike entertained by the Irish people for the memory of Albert. The latter feeling is not without cause. The publication of the correspondence of Baron you Humboldt revealed it. In reference to the Fenians it has to be said that Mr. Gladstone made a specific promise to release those remaining in prison when he was satisfied the country was in a peaceful condition. That it is so at present is not denied. Besides this, petitions and resolutions without number have been forwarded to the Minister from nearly every corporation in Ireland, from grand juries, magistrates, boards of guardiaps, clergymen of all denominations, and from ne less than fifty members of Parliament. Large public meetings have been held, also, to give expression to the national opinion on the #Edjact. It was thought on the occasion of the Prince of Wales' visit an amnesty would be granted, and great indignation and disappointment, were felt when the gracious act was left andone. The highest hopes were entertained that the Duke of Edinburg would have gratified, the almost national desire in this respect.

Albert AND Carlisle. tertained by the Irish people for the memory of

ALBERT AND CARLISLE.

The very day the Duke left a letter was received from Mr. Gladstone announcing that the government had decided to refuse the prayer of the people in favor of amnesty. The Ymes highly approved, and remarked that the pardon of the political prisoners in 1869 was a mistake, and that the outbreak as an insurrectionary movement "was never other than contemptible, but several policemen were shot down in American fashion." One of the objects of the Duke's visit was to unveil the statue to his father, but for some cause the ceremony was deferred. However, he was hardly twenty-four hours out of the country when the report of a tremendous explosion startled the citizens of Dublin. The military were called out, and on investigation it was found that some parties had placed a large number of cans containing powder close to the statues of Prince Albert and Lord Carlisle, which having been tary were called out, and on investigation it was found that some parties had placed a large number of cans containing powder close to the statues of Prince Albert and Lord Carlisle, which, having been ignited, caused the loud report. The feet of the Prince were badly injured and his cloak blown away. The Carlisle statue sudered but slightly.

PRICE ALBERT AND HUMBOLDT.

Prince Albert, as stated, was not a favorite in Iteland. Baron von Humboldt presented him with a copy of "Cosmos," and in acknowledging the compliment he wrote:—"I have been constantly impressed while gradually reading the first volume of your "Cosmos" with my desire to thank you for the enjoyment it has afforded me. I am really unable to give you an authoritative judgment on this excellent work which I have received from your hand, and to atone in some measure for this defect, as well as to give some substantial character to the expression of my thanks, I present you the accompanying work ("Catherwood's Views in Central America"). It may serve as an appendix to your own great work on Spanish America, and thus become worthy of your attention. I do not care to express the intense anxiety with which I look forward to the approaching second volume of "Cosmos." May that heaven whose oceans of light and sidereal terraces, you have so ably described be pleased to preserve you to your country and to Cosmos itself for many years in undisturbed vigor of mind and body."

Humboldt, writing in February, 1847, to his friend Varnhagen, reters to this letter and handles the Prince rather roughly. But it is that part of it where the Irish and Poles are mentioned that has left in the Irish mind a sting that time has not cured. Humboldt says:—"You are right in reprimanding me as to my extreme severity against the man of "sidereal terraces." I am severe only to the mighty ones of the earth, and this man impressed me uncomfortably at Stozenfels: 'I know you feel great compassion for the Poles are as little deserving of our sympathy as the Irish.' The "Oaks" and the "Champion" Sweepstakes. [From Bell's Life in London, June 8.] "Oaks weather" favored the proceedings at these grounds on Saturday last, and the Oaks Sweepstakes secured a vast amount of support from the members. There were thirty-eight subscribers, and at ten birds each it proved such a formidable after-noon's work that the usual practice was disnoon's work that the usual practice was dispensed with previous to commencing, and almost entirely prevented afterwards. It will be noticed that only two members succeeded in killing all their birds, even at the short distance of twenty-five yards, and as we have seen much better birds supplied, the practice must be considered scarcely on a par with previous doings. With all this, however, the sport was excellent, and the winners fairly earned their position, fourteen and thirteen pigeons in succession falling to their respective guns before securing the separate prizes.
